

The U. O. P. is still alive and kicking, and is going to hand the Democrats a good swift one in 1916.

Anyway, the Republican "robber tariff" has been proven not guilty under the indictment that it was responsible for the high cost of living.

Woman suffrage got a biff in the elections last week where it was up before the voters. The East needs some more enlightenment on that principle.

Greece and Roumania have too good an opportunity to see what war means to be keen on jumping into it on the invitation of the nations engaged in the strife over there.

Maybe the Republican party were in power there would be no occasion to issue bonds for "preparedness," they would probably be able to pay the bill out of the ordinary revenues. They built the Panama Canal that way.

Our Democratic friends will whoop it up next year on other issues than those presented in their national platform of 1912. Most of the planks in that platform are loose and are going to fly up and hit the Democrats where they live in 1916.

At last that long-delayed note has been sent to England. The charge it makes is sufficient in both indictment and evidence, but we fear that from the "congenial atmosphere" England has heretofore found in Washington it will take the note entirely in a "Pickwickian sense."

Four American citizens were killed in Mexico last week by a shrapnel shell fired by one of the other of the warring factions there, but so far President Wilson has entered no "protest in the name of humanity." Why not some of that "strict accountability stuff," Mr. Wilson?

The first thing the Democrats will do on getting together in Washington next month will be to pass another "war tax" revenue bill. The present "war tax" expires by limitation in December. Then they will have to look around for other ways and means of raising money—they need it.

The office boy editor of the Globe-Democrat's "Daily Dope" makes a good suggestion in the following paragraph:

Mr. McAdew who is back in Washington after traveling around the country sez we are going to have prosperity pretty soon. These here dimmyratic leaders otter get together and let us know whether we hav got it or hav had it or if we are goin to hav it.

The elections on Tuesday of last week in several states, principally in the East, show plainly that the G. O. P. is right hearty and rapidly acquiring a vigor that makes our Democratic friends apprehensive of or the outcome of the presidential election next year. Everywhere the Progressives are still losing ground. In Massachusetts that party's vote in the recent election was not sufficient to give it a legal standing and consequently will not have a place on the ticket in 1916. Out of four elections to fill vacancies in Congress the Republicans gained two members, and the Democratic working majority in the House has been cut down to twenty-five.

Mr. Bryan is out with a statement in reply to President Wilson's New York speech in which he hands the latter a hard knock on the proposed plan for increasing our armament. Whatever we may think one way or the other on this proposition, it cannot be disputed that Mr. Bryan has it on the President on the point of consistency, for he holds firmly to the ground that this course is wrong and wholly out of keeping with the tradition and defined policy of the nation. The President, on the other hand, has shifted his ground in the past few months and where he was recently opposed to any increase in our military and naval arms he is now an ardent advocate of that policy. Mr. Bryan is still the apostle of peace; Mr. Wilson, "too proud to fight," has become convinced that it would be a sensible provision to have a gun handy. We can hardly apply that old axiom of a wise man changing his mind, but a fool never, here; Mr. Bryan being no fool and Mr. Wilson not being in possession of all the wisdom extant, we can only grant them an even break on that point. While a pistol toter is generally a menace to the safety and peace of the community, a gun in the in the house is a happy part of the furnishings when a burglar is trying to break in. Personally we favor the gun idea as long as we must still contend with burglars—but leave it in the house.

Our farmer friends may perhaps smile at the idea of the editor of this paper giving them gratuitous advice on how to farm and may wonder what he knows about farming, anyway. Nevertheless, the average editor knows a good deal about farming in the same sense that he knows a good deal about other things that concern the economic welfare of the community. He is probably better read in matters pertaining to the science and practice of agriculture than most farmers are. He knows that when a farmer is raising only an average of 12 or 15 bushels of wheat and 25 or 30 bushels of corn to the acre on land that is valued at $50 or $75 per acre that that farmer is not making a success of his business and is actually losing money on his investment. He knows, too, that by the employment of proper methods, the farmer, who is thus playing a losing game, can make his business succeed. Every newspaper office has more farm journals coming to it regularly than any farmer takes. Besides that, it receives a multitude of reports and pamphlets from the national and state agricultural departments. If the editor knows his business, and he generally does, he takes a look at all these papers and reports. That is how the editor learns farming. He knows very near all about it but the hard work.

President Wilson in his extended address delivered in New York last Thursday made the following statement:

"The only thing within our own borders that has given us grave concern in recent months has been that voices have been raised in America professing to be the voice of Americans which were not indeed and in truth American, but which spoke alien sympathies, which came from men who loved other countries better than they loved America, men who were partisans of other causes than that of America, and had forgotten that their chief and only allegiance was to the great government under which they live.

This is a slap at those who call themselves German-Americans, American citizens who because of blood ties with the land of their fathers have seen fit to express themselves as being in sympathy with the German cause in the great war in Europe. Such sympathy may be found among the English-Americans with the English cause in the war or among the French-Americans with the French cause, and so on. Each have their right to this sentimental feeling for the welfare of the people of their race without giving up an iota of the allegiance to the government of the United States. The citizens here of German blood have made no assault upon their government, all they have done is to protest against the attitude of Mr. Wilson in which he pretends to maintain a strict and impartial neutrality between the belligerents, while at the same time he makes everything so far as it lies in his power favorable to the enemies of Germany. What act speaks louder of "alien sympathies" than the fact that the United States is now clearly and for the cause of the Allies in everything but sending our navy and army to their assistance? They are given the run of the United States to find the means to overcome their enemies; everything is made congenial for their representatives in Washington by Mr. Wilson and his assistants. Clearly, there are other "alien sympathies" abroad in this country besides those of the German-Americans. In the light of the administration's conduct, can Mr. Wilson profess to anything else but that he feels an "alien sympathy" for England, France and Russia?

The good old Globe-Democrat is likely to find itself in disfavor at Washington and classed as being of "alien sympathy" if it is not more careful in its comments on the manners of our British friends. Just read this:

The seizure of the steamer Hocking, a ship of American registry, just off the port of New York, was another characteristic piece of British insolence. It is not contended that a flag is conclusive evidence of ownership. This could not be bargained, in view of the occasional practice of British vessels flying the Stars and Stripes while in perilous waters. But the ship's papers should be considered evidence. The Hocking, British built, was once owned by Danes. It was purchased by an American company that bought out all foreign interest. There was a question about its eligibility to registry and the American State Department passed upon the matter. Hence the seizure of the vessel and the carrying of it with a prize crew aboard to Halifax impugned the official acts of the United States. Taken in connection with other high-handed proceedings in open violation of international law, this act of a British cruiser shows the open contempt Great Britain feels for rights of Americans on the high seas.

And it is further ordered by the court that the clerk of this court make a certified copy of this order for publication as aforesaid in the Potosi Journal, and cause the same to be so published therein, and that said certified copy be duly prepared and so published in accordance with this order shall be deemed and taken as the notice of said special election, and said order and notice shall be signed by the Presiding Judge of the County Court of Washington County, Missouri, attested by the clerk of said court, and shall have the seal of said court affixed to said notice.

G. W. SEABOURN, Presiding Judge of the County Court of Washington County, Missouri. (Seal) Attest: GEORGE NOONAN, Clerk of the County Court of Washington County, Missouri.

SAW POLAR BEARS ON BERGS

Passengers on Incoming Steamers Report Vision of Whole Pack on Floating Ice.

Besides reminiscences of war scenes brought in by every ocean liner, the Scandinavian-American steamship Frederick VII had an assortment of iceberg tales. The passengers averred at least some of them did, that they saw dozens and dozens of bergs off the Grand Banks, and that around the unsubmerged base of one particularly tall pinnacle berg they noted large polar bears playing follow the leader.

Apparently the bears, some of which were not altogether white and thus might have been just semipolar, had the impression that they were on their way to somewhere instead of just playing ring around the iceberg rosy.

Being a neutral ship, unarmed, the Frederick VII could not do any bear shooting. Some camera bearers took snapshots, but no camera bearer caught a bear. Maybe that is why the camera men suspected that the passengers who told the bear stories did not confine themselves to the bear facts.
